

Leading People Through Change Online

Offered as part of the Supervision Fundamentals Certification

Your instructor:

Jim Doyle blends his diverse knowledge, 25+ years of experience and a deep passion for helping others to grow and achieve their goals. His corporate coaching and leadership development skills were refined inside manufacturing organizations including Cargill, Prime Therapeutics and St. Jude Medical. Jim's diverse experience helps manufacturing organizations large and small, build leadership and supervisory competence with the skills to improve execution.

Today's most successful companies are those that can change quickly. Yet, overcoming people's natural resistance to change is challenging. If your job or assignment involves getting people to accept and move ahead with something new and different, this workshop is for you.

Topics will include:

- What's behind typical human responses to change and how to handle those not-so-apparent factors?
- The surprising but most effective ways to guide people through transitions and help them return successfully to productive, committed work.
- A roadmap of steps and activities to guide people through transitions at work.
- Ways to support and encourage movement toward the goals and purpose of change at work.
